The Boston Red Sox is an equal opportunity employer.

DICK O'CONNELL

The Executive Vice President and General Manager joined the Red Sox in 1946 as business manager of the Lynn Red Sox in the Class "B" New England League. He took over as the parent club's general manager in 1965—Dave Morehead threw Boston's most recent no-hitter that day. The Winthrop native and Belmont resident also has acted as Boston's home secretary, director of park operations and executive vice president of business operations. He holds a Bachelor's and Master's degree from Boston College, where he played football and baseball.

DON ZIMMER

There were certain things wrong with the Red Sox, according to Don Zimmer, when he took over as manager on July 19, last year. Fundamentals. The team had lost track of the basics. But Zimmer was much happier by season's end. The Red Sox managed a 42-34 record under his guidance and he felt the team's play and attitude had improved immensely. The 46-year-old veteran of 12 major league playing seasons joined the Red Sox in 1974 as a coach. He was a minor league manager in the Red Sox' organization in 1967.

FILENE'S

WE'VE GOT YOUR WINNING TICKET

and the Red Sox are on it for 1977

At all eleven Filene stores (win or lose, but winning is more fun), you'll find undying enthusiasm, rabid fans, and Red Sox tickets to support Boston's summer heroes. Our Sox are up.
Next year is this year.

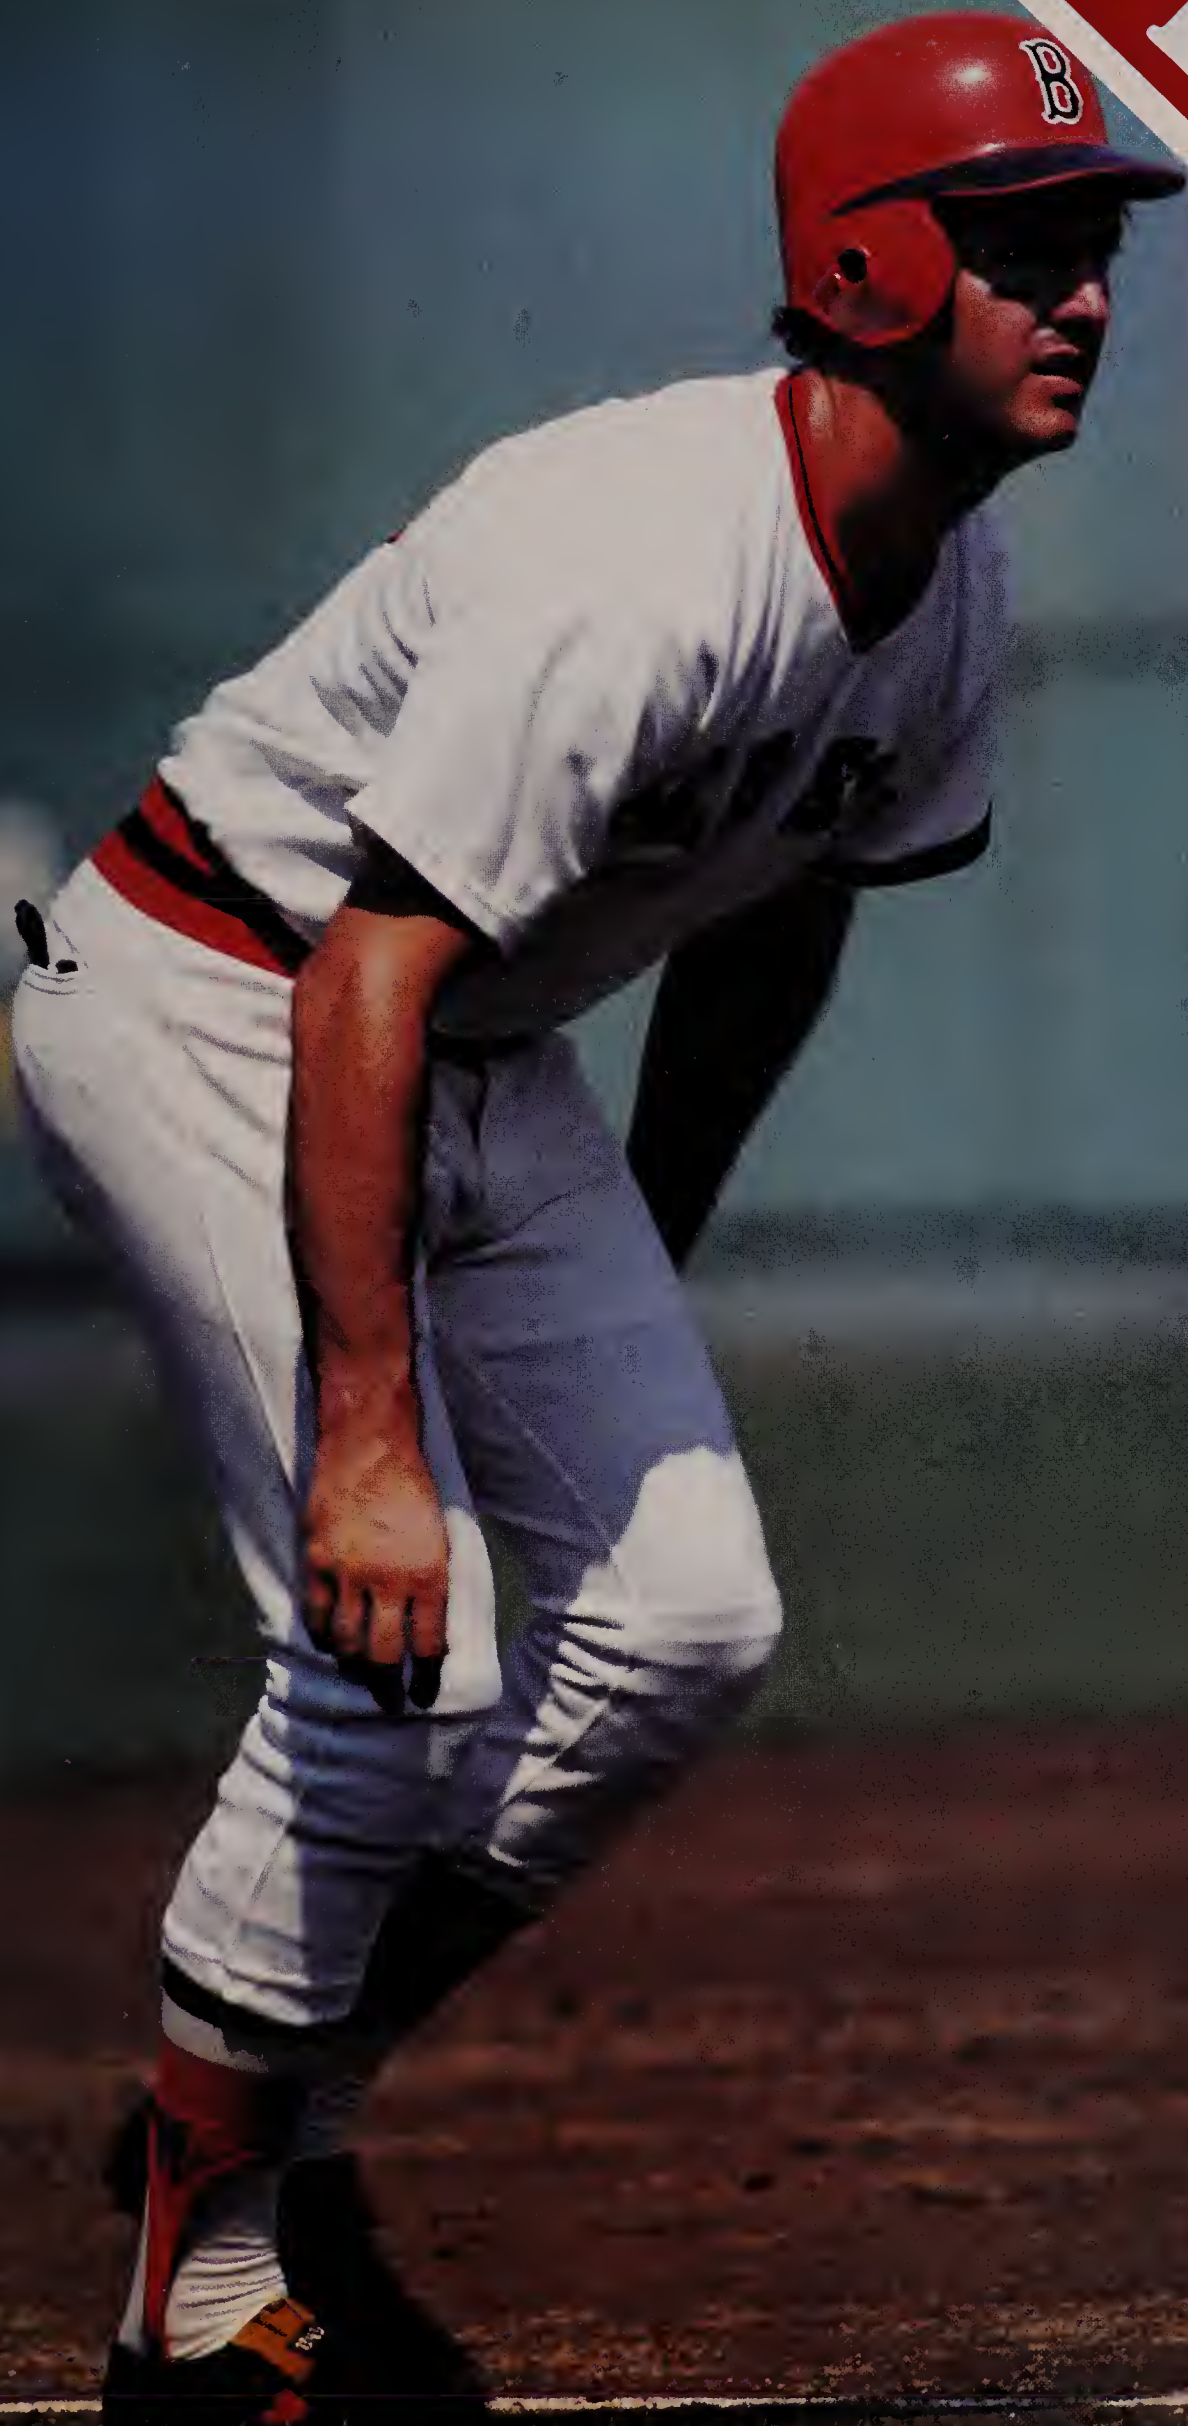

"Pudge" stayed away from injury last season, playing in 134 games—three more than the combined '74 and '75 regular seasons. A 10-week batting slump held down his batting average but he put together an 18-game streak and finished at .255. The three-time All-Star, who joined the Sox organization in '67, used a portion of the off-season for a career-delayed honeymoon.

CARLTON FISK 27

His first year brought Fred "Rookie-of-the-Year" and "Most Valuable Player" honors to go along with 11 other major awards. So the second time around had to be a difficult act—and it was. Contract woes and injuries hampered Fred's second season but he still finished with a .314 batting average and 159 hits. His centerfield acrobatics make for some thrilling defense.

FRED LYNN 19

RICK BURLISON 7

Tremendous arm strength make the "Rooster" one of baseball's top hitting and throwing shortstops. Rick hit in the low .200's the first half of last season before tearing to a .291 average at the finish. The biggest difference was Don Zimmer's moving Rick to the leadoff spot where he hit .340.

BUTCH HOBSON 4

Seventy-six games at third base last season plus winter ball in the Dominican Republic give Butch an optimistic outlook for this season. Butch was called back up from Pawtucket when Don Zimmer took over last year after the infielder was sent down at the All-Star break. His fielding and hitting improved with work, such as this in the batting cage.

There isn't an American League pitcher who enjoys seeing Jim step to the plate. In just over two seasons, the 6-foot-2, 205-pounder has crashed 48 home runs and collected 200 RBI. He and George Scott are two of the strongest hitters in baseball. Knocked out of the '75 World Series by a broken hand late in the season, he followed his .309 rookie season with a .282 batting average.

JIM RICE 14

RICO PETROCELLI 6

Rico, whose classic stance will be long remembered by Red Sox fans, was given his unconditional release on March 26th this year. His 40 home runs in 1969 is still the A.L. record for shortstops. He finished last season in the top 10 of nine all-time Red Sox batting categories and blasted nine grand slams in 12 seasons.

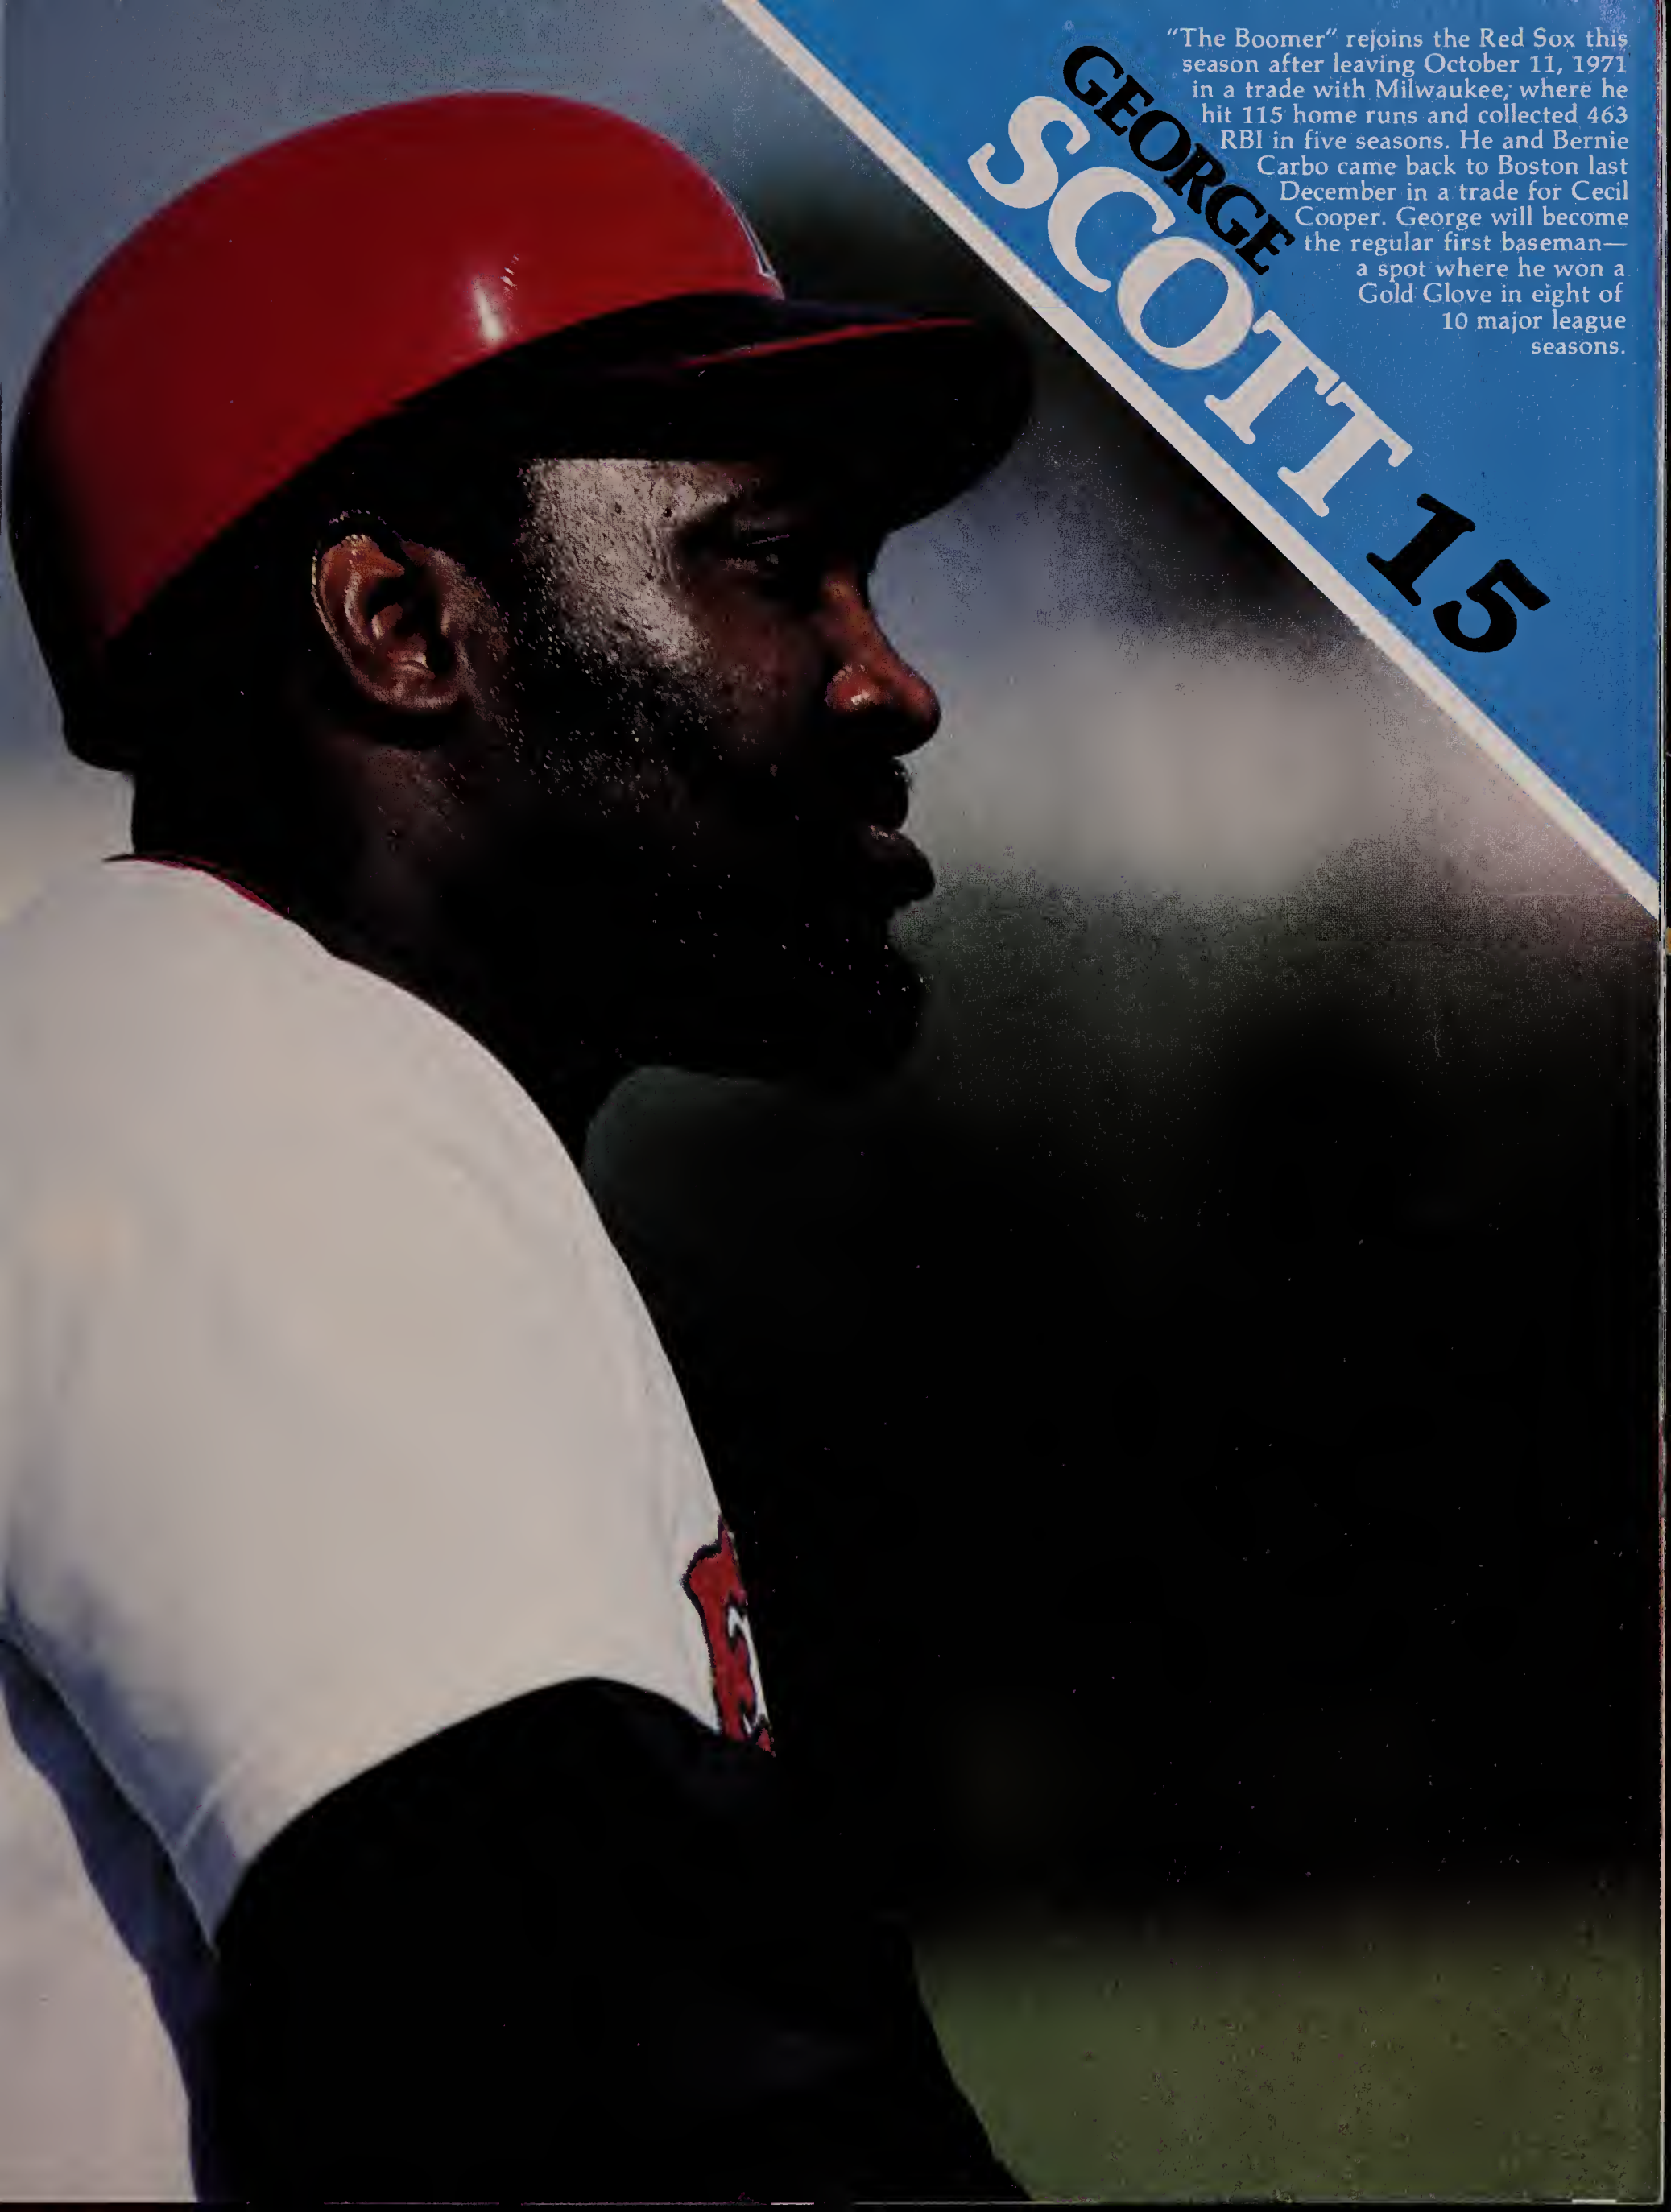

A sweet swing and strong speed on the base-paths make Rick one of the best backup outfielders in the game. He played in 105 games last year and hit for his highest average in the majors, .283, in 269 times at bat. He also came up with some sparkling catches in all three outfield positions, particularly against the centerfield wall. He's the perfect case of how you "can't keep a good man down".

RICK MILLER 16

GEORGE SCOTT 15

"The Boomer" rejoins the Red Sox this season after leaving October 11, 1971 in a trade with Milwaukee; where he hit 115 home runs and collected 463 RBI in five seasons. He and Bernie Carbo came back to Boston last December in a trade for Cecil Cooper. George will become the regular first baseman—a spot where he won a Gold Glove in eight of 10 major league seasons.

Jim's 2.82 ERA was the club's best last season but his 3-12 record was a personal disappointment. Here he strides into one of those sidearm deliveries that led him to a club-high 10 saves last year, four during September when he had a 1-1 record and a 1.98 ERA. Off the field, he keeps his mind in check with a lot of chess playing. He and Bill Campbell could be the two top righthanders out of the bullpen.

JIM WILLOUGHBY 38

"Loo-ie" began this season 21 victories away from the coveted 200-win plateau. A repeat of last year's 21-12 season would give him his fifth season of 20 or more victories and exactly 200 career wins. Given his unconditional release by the Braves in 1971, Luis has twisted and turned his way to one of the greatest comebacks in sports history.

LUIS TIANNT 23

Running is something enemy baserunners think twice about when "Dewey" gets the ball. He won his first Gold Glove last year as the AL's best rightfielder, picking up 15 assists. He finished the year with a .242 batting average, his worst since 1973—his rookie year. Doctors suggested eyeglasses to relieve some of the night game eye strain and sharpen the blurry vision.

DWIGHT EVANS 24

REGGIE CLEVELAND 26

Batters were showing a few strained expressions, too, as Reggie collected nine of his 10 victories over AL East clubs. He had a 3-0 mark vs. the Yankees and a 3-1 record against the Orioles, compiling a 1.78 ERA after being installed as a starter in August. Perhaps his most impressive statistic was giving up only three home runs after allowing a total of 44 in the last two seasons.

Fergie sat in the Red Sox clubhouse July 27th last year, holding champagne, celebrating career win No. 200. He talked of another 20-win season. But five weeks later he was carried from Fenway Park with a torn achilles tendon, his season over and a tough comeback ahead. The 33-year-old from Chatham, Ontario, won the AL "Comeback of the Year" with Texas in '74 when he followed a 14-16 season with 25 victories.

The hustling second baseman punched out 108 hits for a .250 batting average in his first full season with Boston. Hitting behind the runner and strong defense make Denny the type of player Don Zimmer likes. Born in Louisville, Kentucky, Denny and his family moved back to that state in the off-season to rekindle some old friendships.

DENNY DOYLE 5

Concentration, says Bill Lee, is a pitcher's strongest tool. Here "The Spaceman" zeroes in on an enemy batter with some heavy thinking, ideas on Zen, Vonnegut and zero-population shelved for after the game. His string of three consecutive 17-win seasons was snapped last year when a pitching shoulder injury in a May 20th brawl with the Yankees sidelined Lee for two months.

BILL LEE 37

BILL CAMPBELL

22

A major gap in the bullpen was filled when the Red Sox picked up Bill in the free agent re-entry draft. The 1976 "Fireman of the Year" joined the Sox on November 6, after gathering 17 victories and 20 saves with the Twins last year. He appeared in 78 games for Minnesota and struck out 115 batters in 168 innings. He should be the best thing the bleachers have had to cheer in the late innings since Dick Radatz.

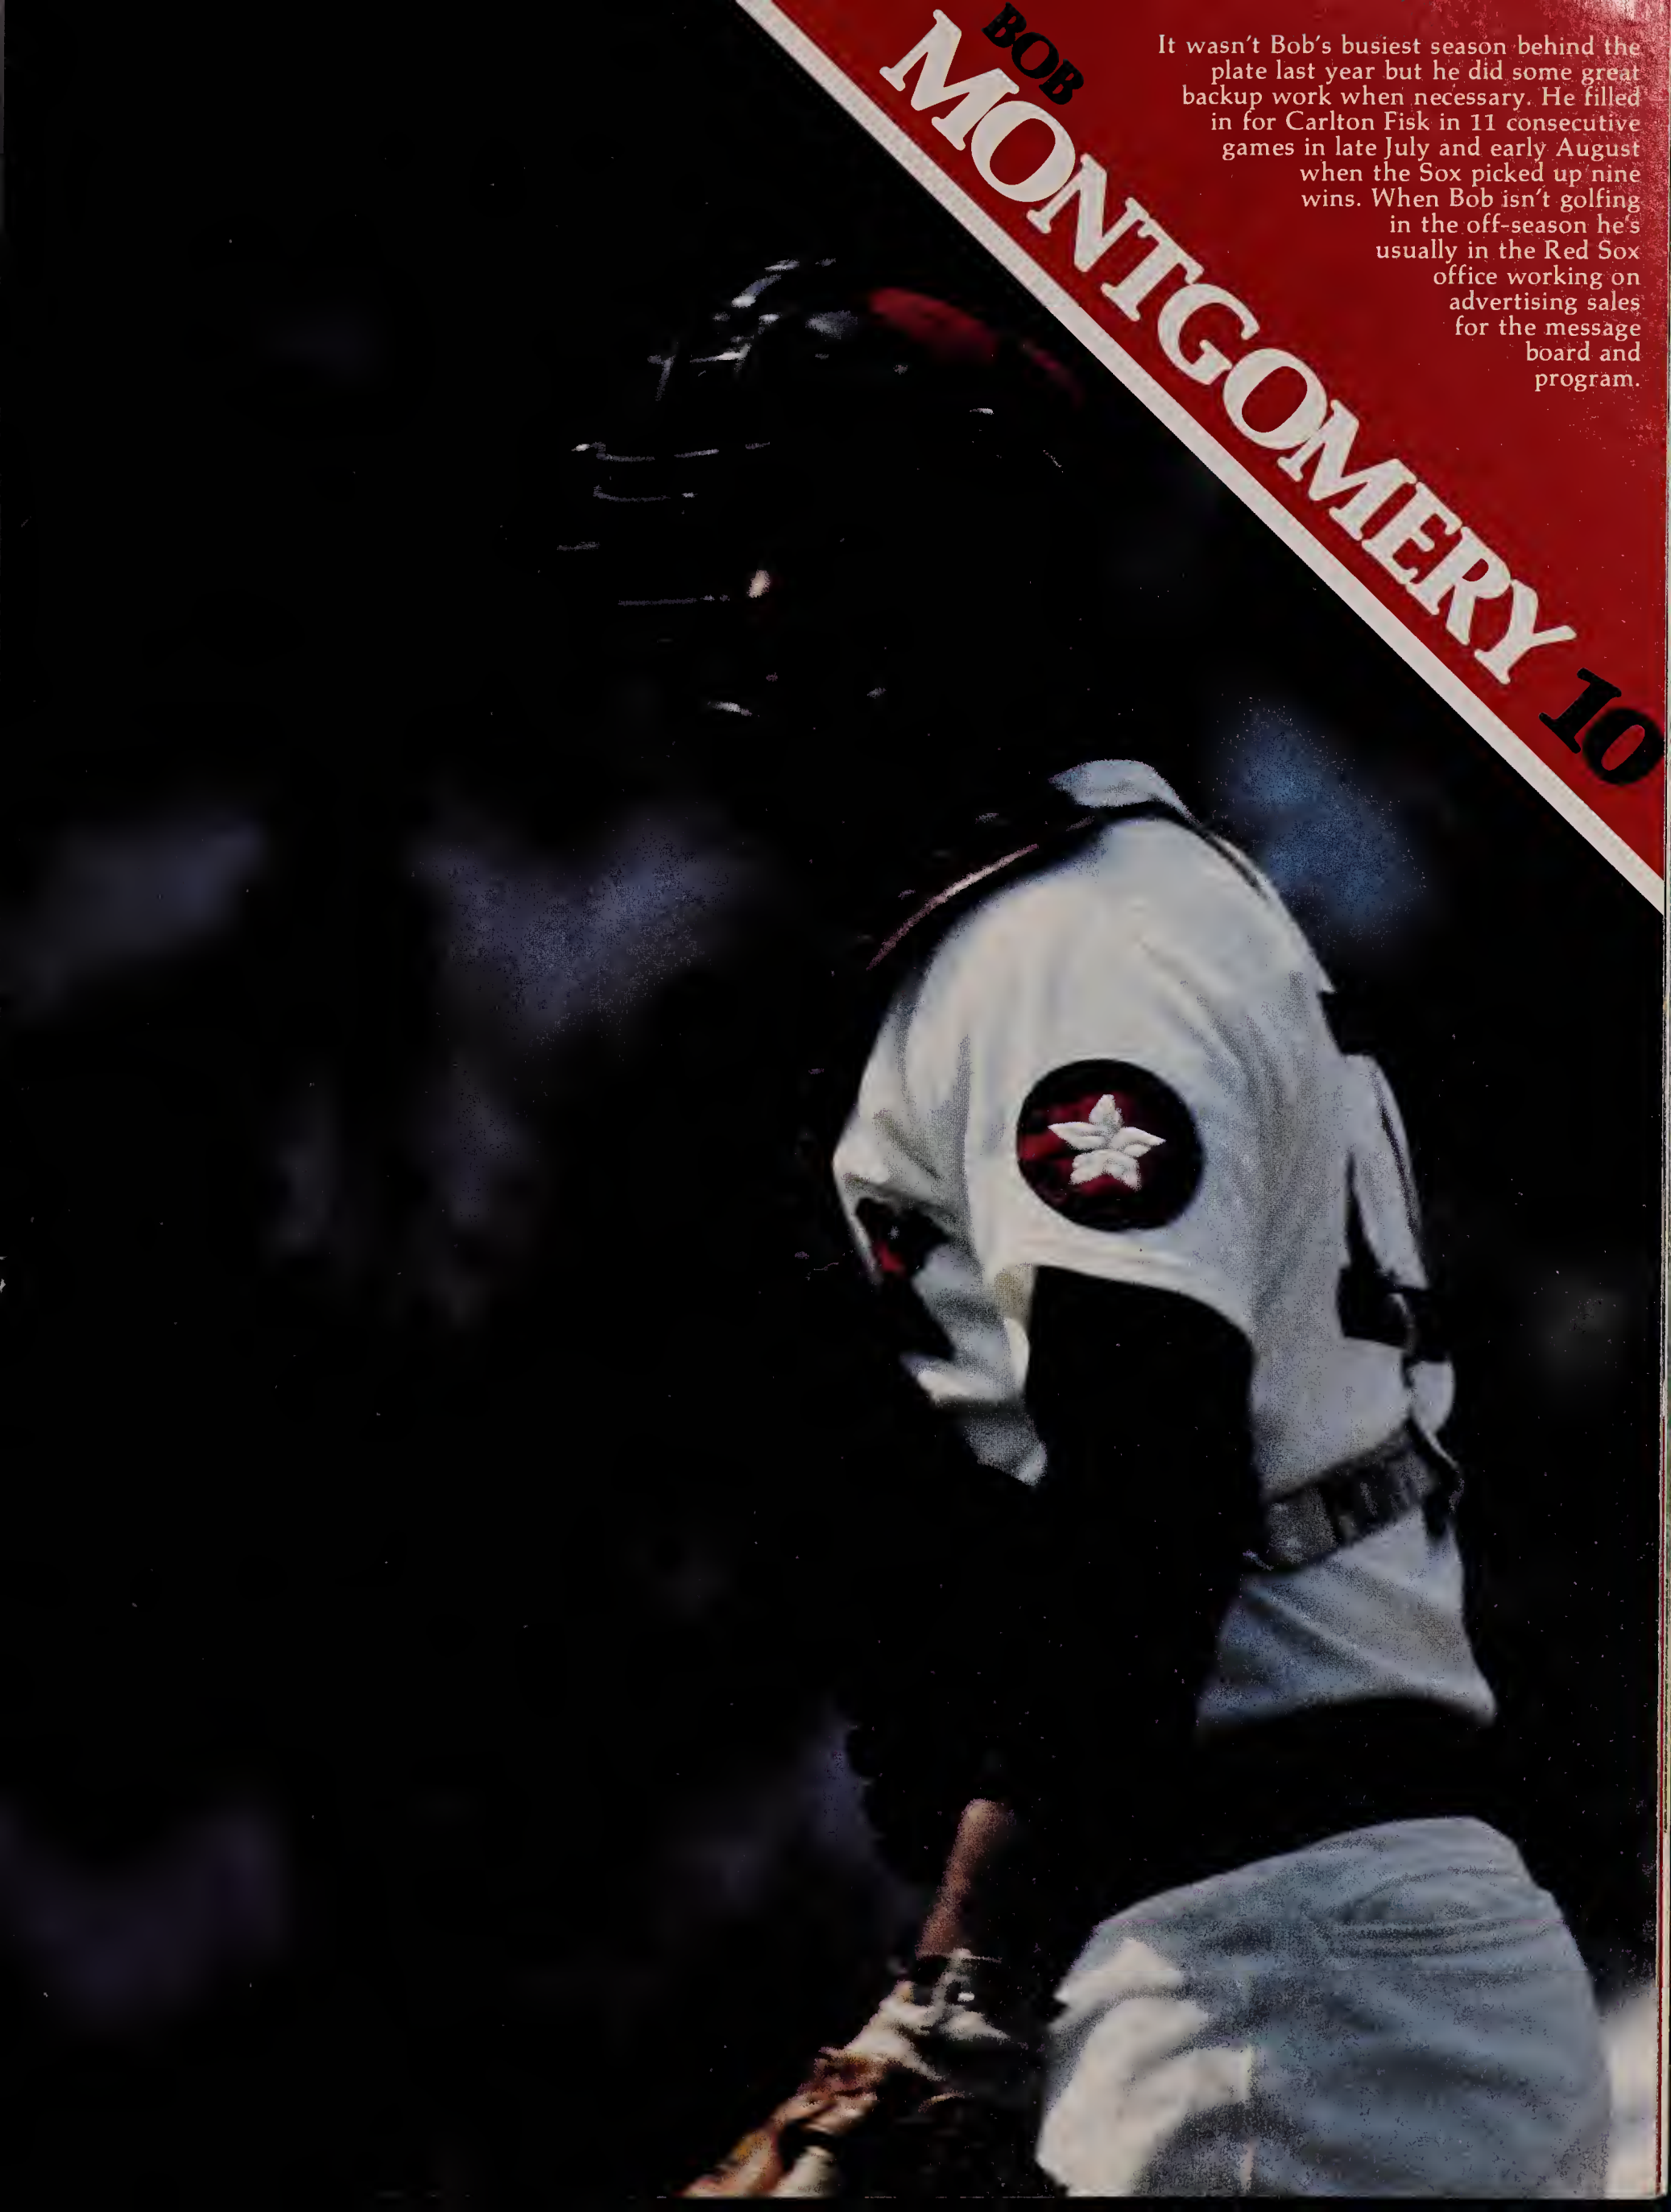

Two one-hitters and four shutouts were among Rick's more impressive accomplishments last year. He also gave only 48 walks in 224 innings, averaging less than two per nine innings. Rick's control is matched by his slick fielding. He didn't commit an error in 54 chances last year and only has bungled eight plays in 508 chances in 12 major league seasons.

RICK WISE 40

BOB MONTGOMERY 10

It wasn't Bob's busiest season behind the plate last year but he did some great backup work when necessary. He filled in for Carlton Fisk in 11 consecutive games in late July and early August when the Sox picked up nine wins. When Bob isn't golfing in the off-season he's usually in the Red Sox office working on advertising sales for the message board and program.

YAZ! YAZ! YAZ!

By Kevin Dupont
Editor

It's the same from Eastport to Block Island. You're from New England and No. 8 means only one thing, one person—Carl Yastrzemski.

"He's the man they call Yaz," is the line sung in "The Impossible Dream," an album recapping the 1967 Red Sox season. It was that year Yaz hit .326, 44 home runs and 121 RBI to lead a team that finished 10th in 1966 to an American League pennant.

It was more than a dream. It was magic. It had been 21 years since the Red Sox had been in the World Series and the "Cardiac Kids" were the lead sports story in every New England paper and many Sunday morning sermons. Column inches and prayers were devoted to this man, Yaz.

The picture on this page shows Yaz ready to turn first base in one of the '67 World Series games at Fenway Park with the St. Louis Cardinals. His look is more than aggressive, it is ferocious. He did more than play baseball that summer, he attacked it.

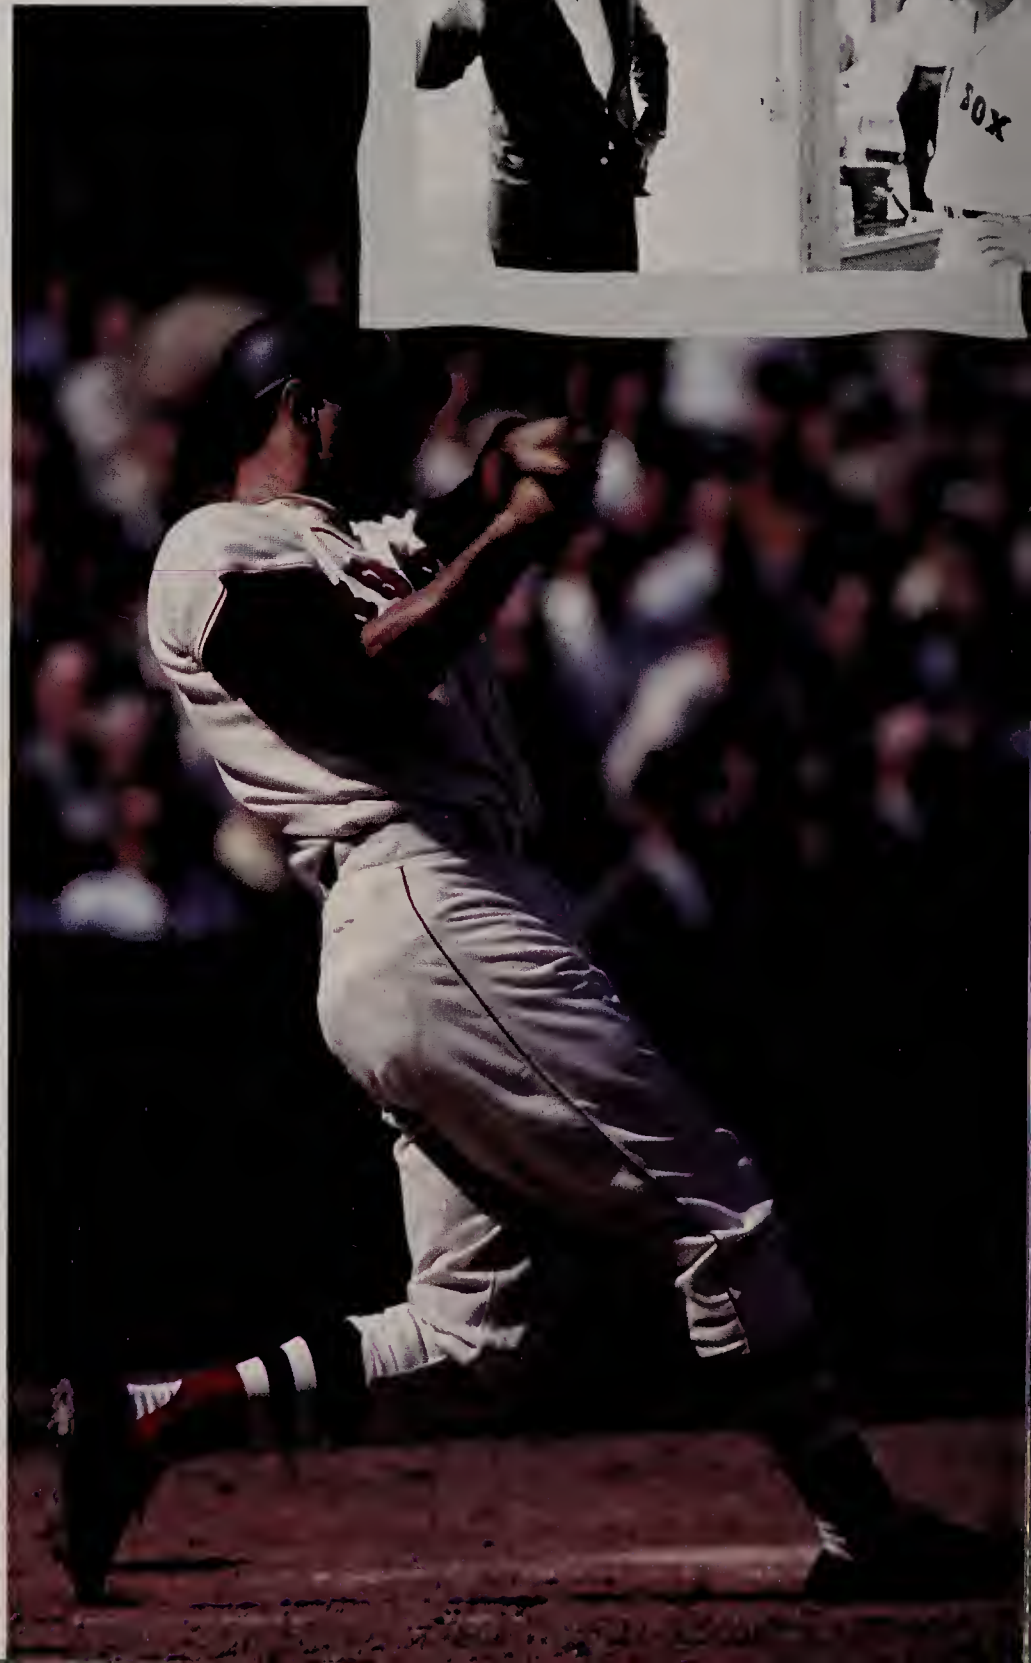

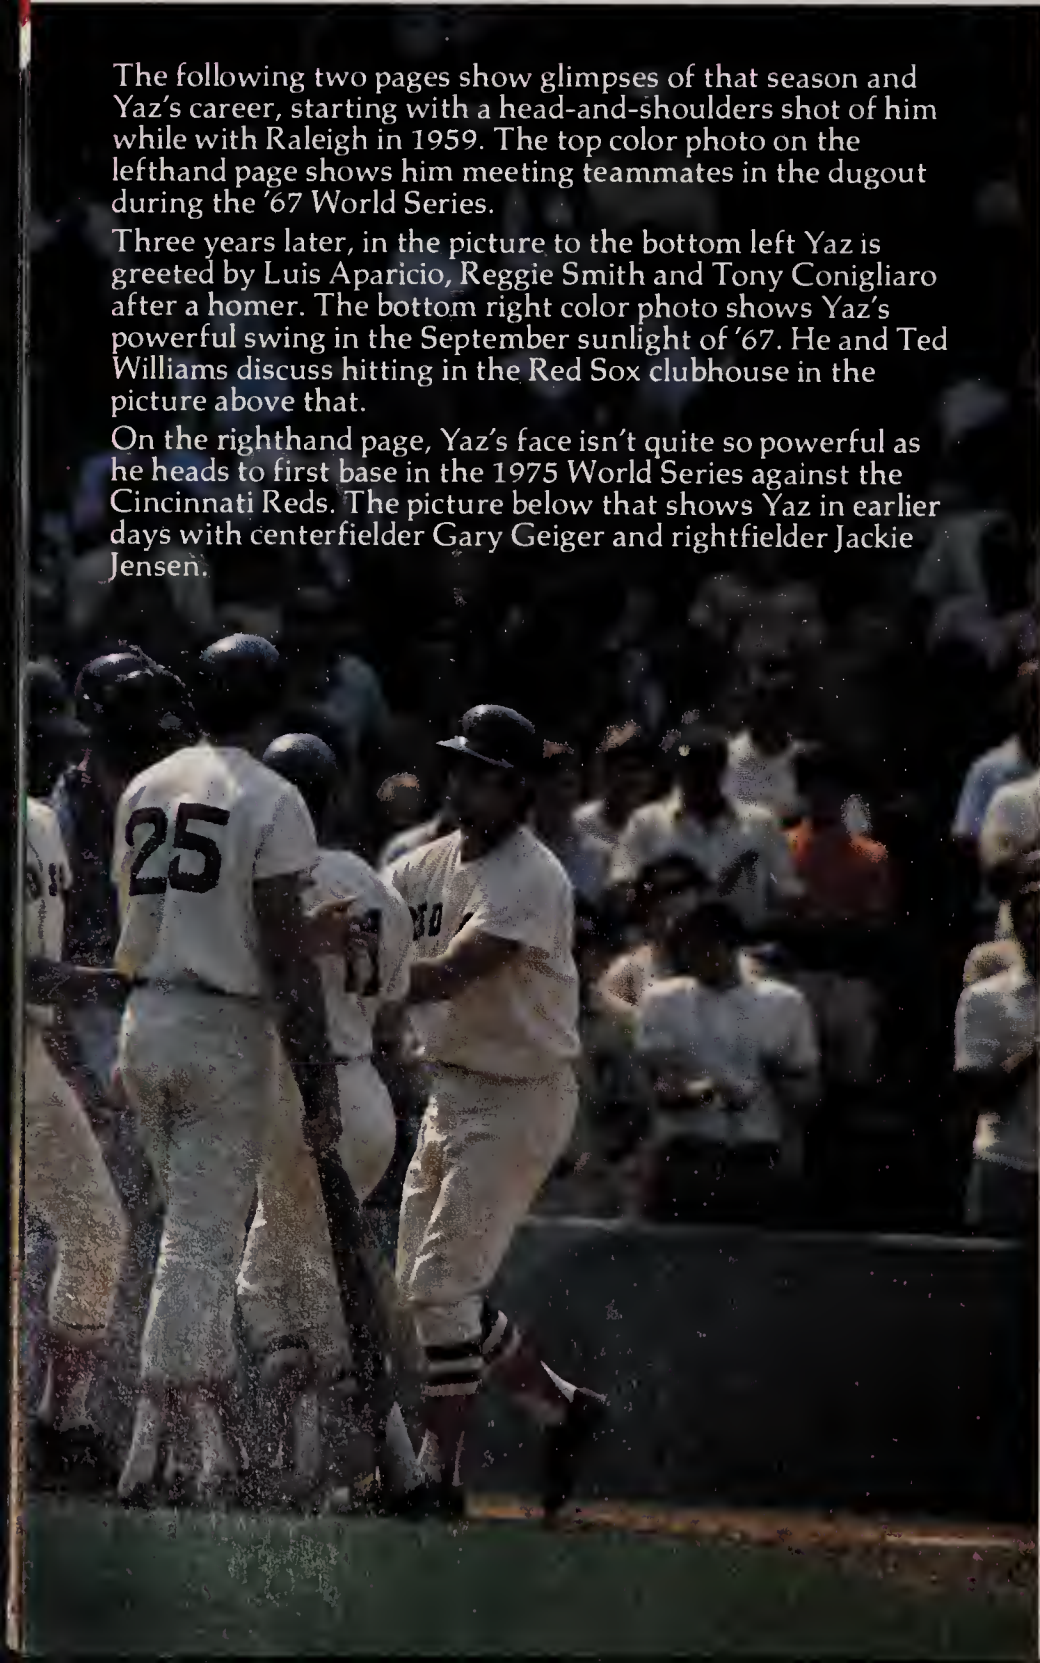

The following two pages show glimpses of that season and Yaz's career, starting with a head-and-shoulders shot of him while with Raleigh in 1959. The top color photo on the lefthand page shows him meeting teammates in the dugout during the '67 World Series.

Three years later, in the picture to the bottom left Yaz is greeted by Luis Aparicio, Reggie Smith and Tony Conigliaro after a homer. The bottom right color photo shows Yaz's powerful swing in the September sunlight of '67. He and Ted Williams discuss hitting in the Red Sox clubhouse in the picture above that.

On the righthand page, Yaz's face isn't quite so powerful as he heads to first base in the 1975 World Series against the Cincinnati Reds. The picture below that shows Yaz in earlier days with centerfielder Gary Geiger and rightfielder Jackie Jensen.

Yaz stands outside the Red Sox dugout in the picture to the right. A towel helps dry the perspiration from a World Series win over the Reds. Below that is Yaz with the late Tom Yawkey, owner of the Sox for some 40 years and close friend of Yaz.

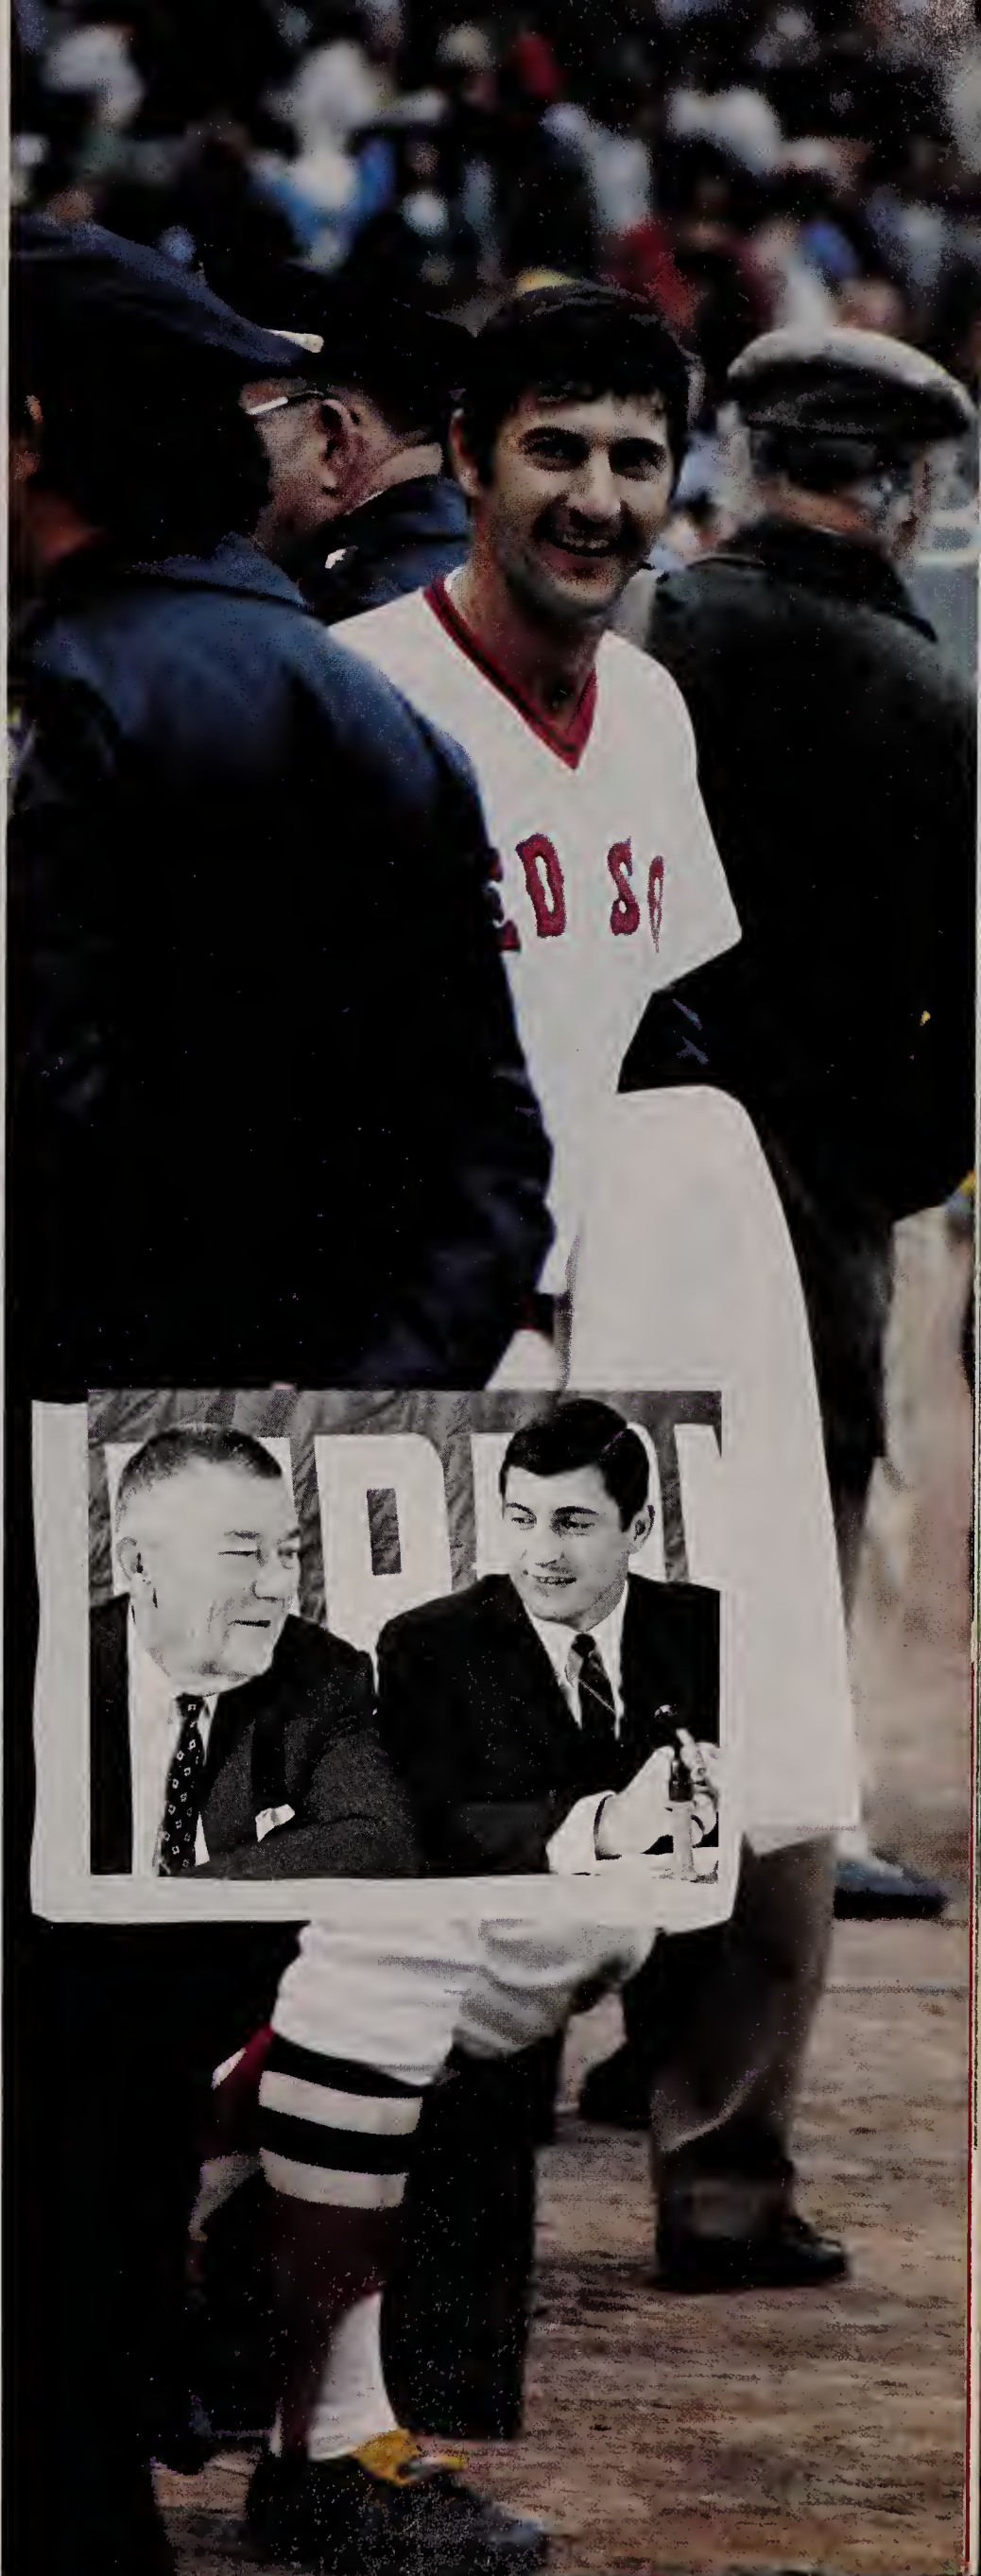

Finally, the last page shows Yaz leaving the field last year. The '76 season, a disappointment for many, was a strong one for Yaz. He belted 21 home runs and hit 102 RBI in the summer he turned 37.

There are two goals left for Yaz. He has played in two World Series, both 4-3 losses. He would like to wear a World Championship ring. And, of course, there is the Hall of Fame. He leads all active players in doubles, walks and extra base hits. He is second in games, and easily could take over first this year in RBI and total bases. He is among the top five in at bats, runs, hits and home runs.

So the records keep tumbling and with each accomplishment Yaz moves closer to the doors at Cooperstown. Each at bat, each base hit, each run moves him that much nearer to baseball immortality.

The name under the Hall of Fame plaque will read Carl Michael Yastrzemski.

From Eastport to Block Island—Yaz would be enough.

Win A Pair of BOX SEATS From UNDERGROUND!

Underground Camera, the pennant winning team to root for when it comes to buying a camera, gives you another reason to cheer. It's Underground's Red Sox, Runs-Scored Sweepstakes, and you don't have to buy a thing to win!

Just jot on a post card the number of runs you think the Sox will score for the month and mail or bring to us by the 15th. All correct entries will be pooled and every month the first two correct entries drawn at random will each receive a pair of box seats to Fenway Park, compliments of Underground Camera. If there are no correct entries that month, then the closest two entries win! All entries become eligible for a drawing for Red Sox playoff tickets for one game, if the Red Sox make the playoffs (and we think they will). Mail entries (no more than one per month) to Underground Camera, Dept. M, 858 Providence Highway, Norwood, MA 02062, or bring in person to any of our 15 convenient locations.

Denny Doyle makes an aerial double play pivot.

BERNIE CARBO 1

He wasn't happy to leave but Bernie is certainly glad to be back with the Red Sox. Boston traded the utility outfielder last year to Milwaukee where he realized "Boston is the only place to play." He returned to the Sox in the off-season in a trade with George Scott for Cecil Cooper.

DOUG GRIFFIN 2

"Dude" played in only 49 games last year, the fewest he's played in a Boston uniform, and his average dropped to .189. Doug, his wife and two children, moved from the North Shore this winter to Walnut, Calif.

Good bat control and strong fielding could push Steve ahead in a three-way fight for second base. Chronic arm trouble forced him to surgery in '74 and '75 but winter ball should have improved his throwing strength for this season. He played in 57 games last year with Boston, filling in all over the infield, and hit .275.

STEVE DILLARD 3

DON AASE 42

Tendonitis placed Don on Pawtucket's disabled list in June last year and he was advised not to pitch until spring training. The 6-foot-3, 192-pounder has a strong fastball and curve which led him to a 5-2 record while in Rhode Island last year.

TOM MURPHY 47

Tom spends the off-season as "Murph The Surf", with a lot of aquatics and running along the sand near his home in Laguna Beach, Calif. He joined the Sox in mid-season with Bobby Darwin last year when Bernie Carbo went to the Brewers.

TOM HOUSE 29

Tom's first year with Boston was marred by a 1-3 record and three weeks on the disabled list with a knee injury. He spent the off-season in California, underwent successful knee surgery and is looking forward to a lot of left-handed relief duty.

The knuckle curve is the most unique pitch in Rick's assorted tosses. The 26-year-old righthander started four games for the Sox when Don Zimmer took over and finished with a 2-1 record and 4.06 ERA. He spent the winter playing ball in Puerto Rico after a short visit home to Michigan where he owns a farm and helps run a craft business.

RICK KREUGER 21

BOBBY DARWIN 42

Bobby suffered his worst season at the plate last year, joining the Sox with Tom Murphy in June. He hit only .179 while with the Red Sox and worked on his swing in winter ball. A very strong spring made him a lead candidate for a DH role.

P.O. BOX E, NEEDHAM HEIGHTS, MASSACHUSETTS 02192

Boston's top pick in the 1973 draft hit .278 with Bristol last year and followed that with a .342 average in the Florida Instructional League. The third baseman spent the winter with a rigorous leg exercise program to help avoid recurring muscle pulls.

TED COX 18

"Rip" was two years out of No. Attleboro High School before the Sox signed him in 1973 while he was pitching sandlot ball in Rhode Island. He spent most of last season in Bristol, where he was 10-10 before moving to Pawtucket.

ALLEN RIPLEY 28

Much of the arm strength which helped Jack earn the nickname "Home Run Baker" is built up in the off-season while he delivers milk in Birmingham, Alabama. Jack, who joined the organization in 1971, joined the parent club for the first time last year.

JACK BAKER 21

JIM BURTON 43

It was Joe Morgan's bloop single that sent the Cincinnati Reds to the 1975 World Championship and also sent Jim Burton to a full season with the Rhode Island Red Sox. He was 11-7 in Pawtucket and his 28 starts was tops in the International League.

BOB STANLEY 46

This spring was Bob's first trip to Winter Haven and Red Sox management was looking for good things to happen. The 6-foot-4, 205-pound right-hander blazed to a 15-9 record in Bristol last year and managed a 2.66 ERA.

ANDY MERCHANT 50

Andy is one of the few lefthanded hitting catchers and the top candidate for the No. 3 catching position. The 26-year-old, who came to the Red Sox organization in 1972, hit .296 with Rhode Island last year.

Cleveland's Frank Duffy puts the tag on Rick Burleson.

THE COACHING STAFF

Don Zimmer (rear row, left) stands next to his new third base coach Eddie Yost, a veteran of 17 major-league seasons and another 14 years of coaching experience with the Senators and Mets. Johnny Pesky, (front row, center) who came to the Red Sox as a shortstop in 1942, is back for his third season as first base coach. Al Jackson (front row, left) is Boston's new pitching coach, a pitcher for 10 major league seasons with the Pirates, Mets, Cardinals, and Reds. Walt Hriniak, who spent two seasons with the Braves and Padres, is in charge of the bullpen.

RADIO AND TV.

Ned Martin and Jim Woods are pairing for their fourth radio season with the Sox. Ned began broadcasting in Fenway in 1960 and this will be his seventh as the lead play-by-play announcer. Jim, who joined the team in 1974, brought broadcast experience to the mike from the Yankees, New York Giants, Pirates, Cardinals and Oakland A's.

Dick Stockton and Ken Harrelson are back for their third season with Channel 38 and the Red Sox. Dick has years of television experience, including a stint with WBZ-TV as Sports Director. Ken was an outfielder—first baseman for the '67 pennant-winning Red Sox and has that extra insight for fans across New England.

What do Red Sox greats Joe Cronin, Ted Williams and Fred Lynn have in common?

They all wear Balfour championship rings, whether Hall of Famers, All Star Players or American League champs.

But what we really want to do is make the Sox' World Championship rings in 1977!
